Research Compliance 101

November 10, 2009 | 12:00 pm CT | 90 minutes

Kevin R. Eskew, Managing Director,
Sonnenschein Nath & Rosenthal LLP

Rachel Nosowsky, CHRC,
Miller Canfield Paddock & Stone PLC

Research presents numerous compliance challenges for hospitals, physician practices, academic medical centers and health systems. Responsibility for navigating and managing these issues often falls on the Compliance Professional but many others, including personnel in finance, quality, credentialing, operations, HR, and departmental administrators play key roles. And, of course, the PI and his/her study team are essential for helping keep research compliance risks in check. This Webinar will provide an overview of the compliance issues that health care organizations face in managing research. It will outline many of the key areas of focus, including human research protections, scientific misconduct, conflicts of interest, research billing, financial grants management and more. Finally, this session will address some specific ways that organizations can diagnose the sufficiency of internal controls associated with many of these primary research compliance risk areas.

Learning Objectives:

- Provide overview of research compliance (dynamics, accountabilities, regulations)
- Identify the common areas of risk and compliance concerns that health care organizations must face if they choose to pursue research activities
- Summarize what some of the strategic options are for managing research compliance
