Letter from the CEO

Roy Snell

SCCE's 6th Annual Compliance & Ethics Institute is September 9-11, 2007 in New Orleans.

The greatest benefits of any professional association are in its networking and education. HCCA has worked hard to provide numerous education and networking opportunities. In fact we conduct approximately 30 more meetings per year than other associations our size. Some are local and intended to cover regional issues. Some meetings cover subspecialty topics. The annual Compliance Institute is intended to bring everyone together.

We have moved into a new realm with our work through the Society of Corporate Compliance and Ethics (SCCE). Approximately five years ago, we began holding meetings with compliance professionals from all industries. Debbie Troklus, who was there the day we started this organization, went to the first meeting. She said it was the best meeting she had been to in three years. She was reenergized by the thoughts and ideas of compliance professionals from other industries. I encourage you to consider networking with compliance and ethics professionals from other industries. They have a fresh perspective and many ideas that are different from what we typically hear.

SCCE's 6th Annual Compliance & Ethics Institute is September 9-11, 2007 in New Orleans. Speakers from several different industries will conduct the sessions, and many of them cover topics that we don't always find at healthcare meetings. The annual meeting will include case studies from Allstate Insurance Company and Akal Security. We will hear from representatives of 3M, Kraft Foods, GE, NCAA, and The World Bank Group. This meeting will serve as our most diverse platform for networking. We all focus on the same outcomes, but with many different challenges and perspectives. I invite you to broaden your view and become reenergized by attending the SCCE Compliance & Ethics Institute in New Orleans. ■
